T he Texas Legislature meets only every other year for five months to conduct the people’s business. The result is that the legislative session is often a wild frenzy of lawmaking, as part-time state representatives and senators hurry to hammer out bills to address the most pressing state issues before returning to their day jobs in June. That frenzy can lead to acrimony, as it did last session, when legislators came in facing an unprecedented $27 billion shortfall. With the state starved of funds, the legislature had to face a long series of tough — and politically unpalatable — choices.

This year, though, legislators faced the opposite problem. With an improving economy and healthy budget, lawmakers had to decide what to spend money on, and how to allocate new resources between three of the state’s top budgetary priorities: education, water, and transportation. All are issues that could have led to passion- ate and divisive debate — but the 83rd session was defined more by comity than contention. Termed the “Kumbaya” session by some, legislators largely pushed away the most divisive issues, like abortion and immigration, and focused on the state’s long-term needs.

Budget

Compared with last session’s dire budgetary situation and the largest funding shortfall in the state’s history, the 83rd’s budgetary outlook was positively rosy, with a two-year spending plan totaling $896.9 billion. Billions in investment for the state’s water plans will largely end up coming out of the Rainy Day Fund, and legislators ended up restoring nearly $4 billion of last session’s education cuts. $450 million will be allocated to roads in parts of the state where oil and gas production has taken a toll on existing infrastructure. The budget package also included $1.2 billion of tax relief for citizens and businesses.

After nearly holding our own last session, mental health spending in Texas received a meaningful boost for the upcoming biennium. Total spending on mental health across agencies exceeded $2.6 billion for FY 2014-2015, an increase of more than $300 million over the filed version of the state spending plan. The budget includes nearly $50 million to eliminate waiting lists for community mental health services, $10 million for expansion of mental health programs for veterans, nearly $30 million for outpatient and jail-based competency restoration initiatives, and a new performance-based incentive payment program contingent on LMRAs achieving outcome target measures established by the state.

Lastly, graduate medical education funding received some much-needed attention from legislators. More than $65 million was allocated in the budget for GME, an increase of more than 15% over the previous biennium. This represents nearly 10% increase in formula funding per resident per year from the last biennium. JAMP funding was also restored to near historic highs, and physician loan repayment programs received nearly $35 million for the biennium.

General Healthcare

The debate over Medicaid overshadowed much of the session. Senate Bills 7 and 8, by Sen. Jane Nelson, contained some of the largest changes to the way the state administers Medicaid. SB 7 redesigns long-term and acute care services for the elderly and allows Medicaid managed care to cover services provided in nursing homes. SB 8 bars providers who have been found guilty of Medicaid fraud from participating in the program.

The question of Medicaid expansion under the framework provided by the Affordable Care Act ended in roughly the same state that it began. From the beginning of the session, Governor Rick Perry and other state leaders had loudly declared that the program, which they called broken, should not be expanded without a ground-up reorganization. Early in the session, lawmakers passed a bill that would set up a framework for Medicaid expansion, only to revoke that same bill hours later.

This session was also characterized by increased scrutiny of psychotropic prescribing to foster children. Despite implementation of utilization review parameters that have significantly reduced psychotropic prescribing, legislators remained concerned that foster youth were being inappropriately medicated. More than a dozen bills were filed to limit how care to this fragile population is provided, many of which could have improbably precluded necessary treatment options. Working with Department of Protective & Family Services leadership and their member’s office, the Federation was able to educate lawmakers about the pitfalls of overly aggressive limitations on access to care, and successfully modified or mitigated all adverse legislation.

Mental Health Initiatives

There were a number of significant bills passed relating to mental health and wellness in Texas. A quick summary:

House Bill 915 by Reps. Lolo Kolchoho and Sen. Nelson monitors the usage of psychotropic medicine for foster children in Texas. The bill gives foster children an opportunity to provide an opinion on their treatment plan, when appropriate, allows foster care youth age 16 and older to act as their own medical consentor, and requires attorneys and guardians to evaluate any medical care a foster child receives. It also increases the youth and medical consentor’s awareness of side effects and alternatives to prescribed psychotropic medicine.

As filed, HB 915 contained provisions that would have dramatically increased administrative burdens on psychiatrists and potentially limited care in foster kids in an acute or emergency setting. Federation members worked diligently to educate lawmakers about potential problems in the legislation, and we would like to extend special thanks to Dr. Debra Atkinson and Dr. Steven Pliszka for their efforts to resolve these concerns in the final bill.

Senate Bill 640 by Sen. Dewell and Rep. Naishat will create a more robust Assisted Outpatient Treatment program in Texas. The bill will markedly decrease the recidivism of people with psychotic problems and reduce the revolving door into the hospital or judicial setting by giving judges more tools to help keep this population in the community. Dr. Les Sechrest worked tirelessly to ensure this continued on page 2

The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM) is used nationally and internationally to provide standardized criteria for clinical and research use. Release of DSM-5 marks the first major revisions to the classification of and diagnostic criteria for mental disorders since DSM-IV was released in 1994.

The Texas Psychiatric Physicians (T SSP) will be offering an intensive, interactive workshop “DSM-5: What You Need to Know – A Master Workshop from the APA-Trained Experts” in Houston on Saturday, JULY 13. Early registration is strongly recommended to ensure your participation!

For those requiring overnight accommodations, a discounted T SSP room rate of $109 at the new Westin Houston Memorial City Hotel is available. For room reservations call 1-800-875-8461 or 1-800-228-3000 BEFORE JULY 1, or upon sell-out whichever occurs first. If you have difficulty placing your hotel reservation, please email T SSP at tsppofc@aol.com or call 1-512-478-0605 for assistance.

The focus of this master workshop is to educate clinicians and researchers on the major changes from DSM-IV to DSM-5, including diagnostic-specific changes, including diagnostic specific changes (e.g., criteria revisions) as well as broader, manual-wide changes (e.g., revised chapter ordering, use of dimensional assessments, integration of neuropsychology and developmental material across the manual).

The primary emphasis is on ensuring clinicians understand how these changes might impact patient care and knowing what modification might be necessary to implement these revisions in their practice. Presentations will also address potential scientific implications and assist researchers in understanding how DSM-5 might impact the study of mental disorders.
D uly you know that the Texas Academy of Psychiatry is larger than some American Psychiatric Association District Branches? It’s true! The Academy has continued to grow since its inception in 2005, and has almost doubled its membership since that time. We have had faithful and vibrant leadership, from our first President, Sanford Kier, MD through our newly installed President Robert Dobyns, MD. Throughout that time, the Academy has worked to provide our members services in keeping with our mission which is to “serve psychiatric patients, their families, psychiatrists, the medical profession, and the public by improving access to care, communication, education, and policy development in the field of psychiatry.”

We have done this by supporting the Federation of Texas Psychiatry, of which we are a member organization. We have done this in a variety of ways, including providing expertise, information, and research to the Federation during the Texas Legislative session.

Although our work closely parallels the work of the Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians and other psychiatric organizations in Texas, our focus is a bit different. Since the Academy is not affiliated with the American Psychiatric Association, we tend to focus on local issues and concerns. We have striven to provide our members with timely information and services and to serve as a resource for Texas psychiatrists.

To that end, we will initiate a new program in conjunction with the next Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians’ Annual Convention and Scientific Program taking place November 8-10, 2013 at the Westin Houston Memorial City Hotel. Lauren Parsons, MD will moderate a mini-workshop on the changes to the Texas Mental Health Code and the implications for physicians during TSPP Council meetings. The mini-workshop will be in an informal roundtable format, allowing participants to come and go at will, but with resources available and plenty of opportunity for questions and answers.

The Academy plans to continue these mini-workshops, and offer a number of other topics including: Mental Health Advance Directives, Commitment, Competency/Capacity, Testimony and Depositions, and Insurance-Free Practice information. Each mini-workshop will be led by someone familiar with the topic and should act as a sort of “cursory” workshop. Hopefully, we will develop opportunities to network and build relationships that will enrich all of our practices and patient care. In addition, by participating in these workshops, Academy members will have the opportunity to sit on Texas Society of Psychiatric Physician Council meetings and learn more about the work of the Society.

Through all of these efforts, the Academy seeks to strengthen bonds with the Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians and to find ways to provide resources, services, and programs that might be helpful to TSPP members and Academy members alike, but which are not feasible for the TSPP to host. Please consider joining the Texas Academy of Psychiatry. Membership offers so many benefits. Some of the most valuable benefits are intangible, and include camaraderie with our colleagues, a change of routine, renewal of friendships, and opportunities to learn.

83rd Texas Legislature Good to Mental Health

bill’s passage, and the Federation thanks him for his efforts.

Currently, state law provides that a court may “advise but not compel” patients to take medication, attend counseling, and avoid substance abuse. Some local jurisdictions have made use of the law, but in other areas of the state, there is confusion regarding a judge’s authority. SB 464 clarifies that these three areas are subject to court order, but that a noncompliant patient cannot be punished by a finding of contempt of court.

House Bill 1738 by Rep. Naughtin and Sen. Judith Zaffirini addresses an existing problem in transporting persons in mental health emergencies in Texas, because police officers and mental health facilities across the state do not all use the same detention forms. This bill creates standardized forms to ensure that laws regarding emergency detention procedures are applied uniformly statewide.

Senate Bill 58 by Sen. Nelson and Rep. Kolkata requires HHS to integrate behavioral (including case management & rehabilitation) and physical health services in Medicaid managed care by September 1, 2014. Under the bill, HHS is required to establish two health home pilot programs for persons diagnosed with a serious mental illness and at least one other chronic health condition.

SB 58 was amended to legislation initially filed by Rep. John Davis that requires the Department of State Health Services (DSHS) to make grants to public/private collaboratives to provide care for persons who are homeless, mentally ill, or facing substance abuse problems. Built on the “Haven for Hope” model, the bill requires the entity to match the state grant, but the collaborative must be self-sustaining after seven years.

Lastly, it should be noted that our old friends, the Citizen’s Commission on Human Rights (CCHR) and the Church of Scientology, had a particularly active session. CCHR took advantage of changes to House rules permitting electronic filing of witness cards and used phone banking to create the appearance of widespread opposition to several of our key initiatives. With so many freshman House and Senate members, there was a degree of ignorance about CCHR and their activities. The Federation engaged in a significant education effort to expose what CCHR stands for, and was successful in passing our bills in their preferred form. Additional education efforts for legislation during the interim are already in the planning stages.

All in all, it was a very successful session from a mental health standpoint. Thanks to all Federation members for their vocal and visible presence at the state Capitol. Your expertise and involvement at numerous critical junctures made the difference this year. Please let the Federation know if you have any questions or concerns about this bill or any other legislative issues.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND
The goal of the DSM-5 process has been to develop a scientifically based manual of psychiatric diagnosis that is useful for clinicians and their patients. APA interest in developing DSM dates back to the organization's inception in 1844, when one of its original missions was to gather statistics on the prevalence of mental illness. In the two decades since the publication of DSM-IV, there has been a wealth of new studies on epidemiology, neurobiology, psychopathology, and treatment of various mental illnesses. So, it was time for APA to consider making necessary modifications in the DSM as well as improve the diagnostic categories and criteria based on new scientific evidence.

The APA's extensive development process of the fifth edition of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM-5) was released in May 2013. Physicians need to become familiar with DSM-5, with an understanding of the changes from DSM-IV, and the scientific reasons for those changes. Following the conference, attendees will be ready to begin using DSM-5 in clinical practice.

DO NOT FOLD OR CRUMPLE THIS FORM!
Many physicians are moving to electronic medical records and billing processes and are unfamiliar with the technology and application. Continuing education is needed to recognize the technological changes and formulate a plan to effectively apply it in their medical practice.

The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders provides standard criteria for the classification of mental disorders. It is used by clinicians and researchers around the world in the diagnosis and treatment of those patients with mental illness. The revised DSM-5 will be published in May of this year and education is needed for clinicians to identify the major changes in the classification of mental disorders to formulate a diagnosis and develop a management/treatment plan.

Continuing education is needed to improve the physicians’ knowledge about ethics and the Standards of Care so they are able to recognize how the ethical principles and legal requirements are different and recognize the differences so they may develop strategies to apply the knowledge in practice.
