83rd Texas Legislature Good to Mental Health

Eric Woomer, Public Policy Consultant, Federation of Texas Psychiatry

he Texas Legislature meets only every other year for five months to conduct the people's business. The result is that the legislative session is often a wild frenzy of lawmaking, as part-time state representatives and senators hurry to hammer out bills to address the most pressing state issues before returning to their day jobs in June.

That frenzy can lead to acrimony, as it did last session, when legislators came in facing an unprecedented $27 billion shortfall. With the state starved of funds, the legislature had to face a long series of tough — and politically unpalatable — choices.

This year, though, legislators faced the opposite problem. With an improving economy and healthy budget, lawmakers had to decide what to spend money on, and how to allocate new resources between three of the state's top budgetary priorities: education, water, and transportation.

All are issues that could have led to passionate and divisive debate — but the 83rd session was defined more by comity than contention. Termed the "Kumbaya" session by some, legislators largely pushed away the most divisive issues, like abortion and immigration, and focused on the state's long-term needs.

Compared with last session's dire budgetary situation and the largest funding shortfall in the state's history, the 83rd's budgetary outlook was positively rosy, with a two-year spending plan totaling $196.9 billion.

Billions in investment for the state's water plan will largely end up coming out of the Rainy Day Fund, and legislators ended up restoring nearly $4 billion of last session's education cuts. $450 million will be allocated to roads in parts of the state where oil and gas production has taken a toll on existing infrastructure. The budget package also includes $1.2 billion of tax relief for citizens and businesses.

After merely holding our own last session, mental health spending in Texas received a meaningful boost for the upcoming biennium. Total spending on mental health across agencies exceeded $2.6 billion for FY 2014-2015, an increase of more than $300 million above the filed version of the state spending plan. The budget includes nearly $50 million to eliminate waiting lists for community mental health services, $10 million for expansion of mental health programs for veterans, nearly $30 million for outpatient and jail-based competency restoration initiatives, and a new performance-based incentive payment program contingent on LMHAs achieving outcome target measures established by the state.

Lastly, graduate medical education funding received some much-overdue attention from legislators. More than $65 million was allocated in the budget for GME, an increase of more than 15% over the previous biennium. This represents nearly 10% increase in formula funding per resident per year from the last biennium. JAMP funding was also restored to near-historic highs, and physician loan repayment programs received nearly $35 million for the biennium.

General Healthcare

The debate over Medicaid overshadowed much of the session. Senate Bills 7 and 8, by Sen. Jane Nelson, contained some of the largest changes to the way the state administers Medicaid. SB 7 redesigns long-term and acute care services for the elderly and allows Medicaid managed care to cover services provided in nursing homes. SB 8 bars providers who have been found guilty of Medicaid fraud from participating in the program.

The question of Medicaid expansion under the framework provided by the Affordable Care Act ended in roughly the same state that it began. From the beginning of the session, Governor Rick Perry and other state leaders had loudly declared that the program, which they called broken, should not be expanded without a ground-up reorganization. Early in the session, lawmakers passed a bill that would set up a framework for Medicaid expansion, only to revoke that same bill hours later.

This session was also characterized by increased scrutiny of psychotropic prescribing to foster children. Despite implementation of utilization review parameters that have significantly reduced psychotropic prescribing, legislators remained concerned that foster youth were being inappropriately medicated. More than a dozen bills were filed to limit how care to this fragile population is provided, many of which could have improperly precluded necessary treatment options. Working with Department of Protective & Family Services leadership and the Governor's office, the Federation was able to educate lawmakers about the pitfalls of overly aggressive limitations on access to care, and successfully modified or mitigated all adverse legislation.

Mental Health Initiatives

There were a number of significant bills were passed relating to mental health and wellness in Texas. A quick summary:

House Bill 915 by Rep. Lois Kolkhorst & Sen. Nelson monitors the usage of psychotropic medicine for foster children in Texas. The bill gives foster children an opportunity to provide an opinion on their medical care, allows foster care youth age 16 and older to act as their own medical consenter, and requires attorneys and guardians to evaluate any medical care a foster child receives. It also increases the youth and medical consenter's awareness of side-effects and alternatives to prescribed psychotropic medicine.

As filed, HB 915 contained provisions that would have dramatically increased administrative burdens on psychiatrists and potentially limited care to foster kids in an acute or emergency setting. Federation members worked diligently to educate lawmakers about potential problems in the legislation, and we would like to extend a special thanks to Dr. Debra Atkisson and Dr. Steven Pliszka for their efforts to resolve these concerns in the final bill.

Senate Bill 460 by Sen. Bob Deuell & Rep. Garnet Coleman will assist educators in recognizing signs of possible mental illness in pupils and alert their parents. The bill will create training programs designed by a panel of experts and require school health advisory councils to review adopted health education curriculum for accuracy and the inclusion of mental health instruction.

Senate Bill 1842 by Sen. Deuell and Rep. Elliott Naishtat amends current hospitals and mental hospitals procedures to authorize a nurse to conduct a face-to-face evaluation of a patient within one hour after the use of restraint and seclusion, other than the nurse who initiated its use. The bill requires a physician to conduct a face-to-face evaluation and document clinical justification for continuing the use of restraint or seclusion. The Federation would like to extend special thanks to Dr. George Santos for his involvement in the passage of this bill.

Senate Bill 646 by Sen. Deuell and Rep. Naishtat will create a more robust Assisted Outpatient Treatment program in Texas. The bill will markedly decrease the recidivism of people with psychiatric problems and reduce the revolving door into the hospital or judicial setting by giving judges more tools to help keep this population in the community. Dr. Les Sechrest worked tirelessly to ensure this

DSM-5: What You Need to Know A Master Workshop from the APA-Trained Experts

SATURDAY, JULY 13 • WESTIN HOUSTON MEMORIAL CITY HOTEL

The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM) is used nationally and internationally to provide standardized criteria for clinical and research use. Release of DSM-5 marks the first major revisions to the classification of and diagnostic criteria for mental disorders since DSM-IV was released in 1994.

The Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians (TSPP) will be offering an intensive, interactive workshop "DSM-5: What You Need to Know - A Master Workshop from the APA-Trained Experts" in Houston on Saturday, JULY 13. Early registration is strongly recommended to ensure your participation!

For those requiring overnight accommodations, a discounted TSPP room rate of $109 at the new Westin Houston Memorial City Hotel is available. For room reservations call 1-800-937-8461 or 1-800-228-3000 BEFORE JULY 1, or upon sell-out whichever occurs first. If you have difficulty placing your hotel reservation, please email TSPP at tsppofc@aol.com or call 1-512-478-0605 for assistance.

The focus of this master workshop is to educate clinicians and researchers on the major changes from DSM-IV to DSM-5, including diagnostic-specific changes, including diagnostic specific changes (e.g., criteria revisions) as well as broader, manual-wide changes (e.g., revised chapter ordering, use of dimensional assessments, integration of neuroscience and developmental material across the manual).

The primary emphasis is on ensuring clinicians understand how these changes might impact patient care and knowing what modification might be necessary to implement these revisions in their practice. Presentations will also address potential scientific implications and assist researchers in understanding how DSM-5 might impact the study of mental disorders.

Texas Academy of Psychiatry — Welcome!

Martha Leatherman, MD, President, Texas Academy of Psychiatry

id you know that the Texas Academy of Psychiatry is larger than some American Psychiatric Association District Branches? It's true! The Academy has continued to grow since its inception in 2005, and has almost doubled its membership since that time. We have had faithful and vibrant leadership, from our first President, Sanford Kiser, MD through our newly installed President Robert Dobyns, MD. Throughout that time, the Academy has worked to provide our members services in keeping with our mission which is to "serve psychiatric patients, their families, psychiatrists, the medical profession, and the public by improving access to care, communication, education, and policy development in the field of psychiatry."

We have done this by supporting the Federation of Texas Psychiatry, of which we are a member organization. We have done this in a variety of ways, including providing expertise, information, and research to the Federation during the Texas Legislative session

Although our work closely parallels the work of the Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians and other psychiatric organizations in Texas, our focus is a bit different. Since the Academy is not affiliated with the American Psychiatric Association, we tend to focus on local issues and concerns. We have striven to provide our members with timely information and services and to serve as a resource for Texas psychiatrists.

To that end, we will initiate a new program in conjunction with the next Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians' Annual Convention and Scientific Program taking place November 8-10, 2013 at the Westin Houston Memorial City Hotel. Lauren Parsons, MD will moderate a mini-workshop on the changes to the Texas Mental Health Code and the implications for physicians during TSPP Council meetings. The mini-workshop will be in an informal roundtable format, allowing participants to come and go at will, but with resources available and plenty of opportunity for questions and answers.

The Academy plans to continue these mini-workshops, and offer a number of other topics including IT, Mental Health Advance Directives, Commitment, Competency/Capacity, Testimony and Depositions, and Insurance-free Practice information. Each mini-workshop will be led by someone familiar with the topic and should act as a sort of "curbside" workshop. Hopefully, we will develop opportunities to network and build relationships that will enrich all of our practices and patient care. In addition, by participating in these workshops, Academy members will have the opportunity to sit in on Texas Society of Psychiatric Physician Council meetings and learn more about the work of the Society.

Through all of these efforts, the Academy seeks to strengthen bonds with the Texas

Martha Leatherman, MD

Society of Psychiatric Physicians and to find ways to provide resources, services, and programs that might be helpful to TSPP members and Academy members alike, but which are not feasible for the TSPP to host.

Please consider joining the Texas Academy of Psychiatry. Membership offers so many benefits. Some of the most valuable benefits are intangible, and include camaraderie with our colleagues, a change of routine, renewal of friendships, and opportunities to learn.

83rd Texas Legislature Good to Mental Health

bill's passage, and the Federation thanks him for his efforts.

Currently, state law provides that a court may "advise but not compel" patients to take medication, attend counseling, and avoid substance abuse. Some local jurisdictions have made use of the law, but in other areas of the state, there is confusion regarding a judge's authority. SB 646 clarifies that these three activities are subject to court order, but that a noncompliant patient cannot be punished by a finding of contempt of court.

House Bill 1738 by Rep. Naishtat and Sen. Judith Zaffirini corrects an existing problem in transporting persons in mental health emergencies in Texas, because police officers and mental health facilities across the state do not all use the same detention forms. This bill creates standardized forms to ensure that laws regarding emergency detention procedures are applied uniformly statewide.

Senate Bill 58 by Sen. Nelson and Rep. Kolkhorst requires HHSC to integrate behavioral (including case management & rehabilitation) and physical health services in Medicaid managed care by September 1, 2014. Under the bill, HHSC is required to establish two health home pilot programs for persons diagnosed with a serious mental illness and at least one other chronic health condition.

SB 58 was amended to legislation initially filed by Rep. John Davis that requires the Department of State Health Services (DSHS) to make grants to public/private collaboratives to provide care for persons who are homeless, mentally ill, or facing substance abuse problems. Built on the "Haven for Hope" model, the bill requires the entity to match the state grant, but the collaborative must be self-sustaining after seven years.

Lastly, it should be noted that our old friends, the Citizen's Commission on Human Rights (CCHR) and the Church of Scientology, had a particularly active session. CCHR took advantage of changes to House rules permitting electronic filing of witness cards and used phone banking to create the appearance of widespread opposition to several of our key initiatives. With so many freshman House and Senate members, there was a degree of ignorance about CCHR and their activities. The Federation engaged in a significant education effort to expose what CCHR stands for, and was successful in passing our bills in their preferred form. Additional education efforts for legislation during the interim are already in the planning stages.

All in all, it was a very successful session from a mental health standpoint. Thanks to all Federation members for their vocal and visible presence at the state Capitol. Your expertise and involvement at numerous critical junctures made the difference this year. Please let the Federation know if you have any questions or concerns about this bills or any other legislative issues.

PROFESSIONAL LEARNING GAP / EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

The goal of the DSM-5 process has been to develop a scientifically based manual of psychiatric diagnosis that is useful for clinicians and their patients. APA's interest in developing DSM dates back to the organization's inception in 1844, when one of its original missions was to gather statistics on the prevalence of mental illness. In the two decades since the publication of DSM-IV, there has been a wealth of new studies on epidemiology, neurobiology, psychopathology, and treatment of various mental illnesses. So, it was time for APA to consider making necessary modifications in the diagnostic categories and criteria based on new scientific evidence.

The APA's extensive development process of the fifth edition of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM-5) was released in May 2013. Physicians need to become familiar with DSM-5, with an understanding of the changes from DSM IV, and the scientific reasons for those changes. Following the conference, attendees will be ready to begin using DSM-5 in clinical practice.

This activity will highlight the many changes and the rationale behind them explained, including the reorganization of the chapters (the 'metastructure"), the creation of new diagnoses and categories, the consolidation of some diagnoses, and the deletion of others. The demise of the multiaxial diagnosis will be reviewed. The changes include an emphasis on dimensional ratings, gender, and cultural issues. Controversies accompanying the development of DSM-5 will be explored. Persons attending this meeting will understand the use of DSM-5 in clinical and research settings, and for administrative purposes.

AGENDA

This workshop will be conducted using slides and handouts developed by the editors of DSM-5 and made available only to APA-trained psychiatrists who have agreed to serve as the speakers in their respective states.

12:30-12:45 PM CLOSING REMARKS

Many physicians are moving to electronic medical records and billing processes and are unfamiliar with the technology and application. Continuing education is needed to recognize the technological changes and formulate a plan to effectively apply it in their medical practice.

The Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders provides standard criteria for the classification of mental disorders. It is used by clinicians and researchers around the world in the diagnosis and treatment of those patients with mental illness. The revised DSM-5 will be published in May of this year and education is needed for clinicians to identify the major changes in the classification of mental disorders to formulate a diagnosis and develop a management / treatment plan.

Continuing education is needed to improve the physicians' knowledge about ethics and the Standards of Care so they are able to recognize how the ethical principles and legal requirements are different and recognize the differences so they may develop strategies to apply the knowledge in their practice.

CME ACCREDITATION

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the Essential Areas and Policies of the Texas Medical Association (TMA) through the Joint Sponsorship of the Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians and the Texas Society of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry.

The Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians is accredited by the Texas Medical Association to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians designates this Live Activity for a maximum of eight (8) AMA PRA Category I Credits™ Participants should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

The presentations entitled "Electronic Communications with Patients - The Good and the Bad" and "AIMING HIGH – Ethics and the Standards of Care" have each been designated by the Texas Society of Psychiatric Physicians for one (1) hour of education in medical ethics and/or professional responsibility.

NEEDS ASSESSMENT

TSCAP has incorporated into this CME activity the relevant educational needs concerning competence that underlie the professional practice gaps of our participants.

TARGET AUDIENCE / PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

This live activity has been designed with didactic lectures supplemented with clinical vignettes, audiovisual presentation, direct discussion, panel discussion and a case study presentation in multiple educational sessions. The program is designed to provide its' primary target audience of Child and Adolescent Psychiatrists, General Psychiatrists and other specialties of medicine in the State of Texas, with clinically-relevant information to advance the physician's competence and effective use of targeted skills so that they may develop strategies to apply the knowledge, skills and judgment of the information presented in the educational activity into their practice.

The practice of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry has changed over the years with the explosion of technology to healthcare providers, parents and children. With the advent of social media, a new set of challenges have presented themselves i.e., cyber-bullying, violent acts portrayed in the media, and the contagion theory of suicide in teenagers. There is a gap in the physicians' knowledge and understanding of social media and its use by their patients and families. Patients may try to use email and texting to contact their providers, and physicians need a clear understanding of the legal implications of this. These gaps can lead to poor outcomes, have legal implications, and affect treatment approaches.

Continuing education and training is needed to improve communications with patients; identify suicidal causes and behavior; apply new concepts in the development of treatment plans and increase the physicians' knowledge of the current standards of care with the use of social media.
